Wit & Wisdom

It's That Time Again!

by Juleann Lattimer

The days are getting shorter, the trees are getting barer, and the weather is getting colder. And if that weren't enough to remind me that the holidays are just around the corner, the stores are displaying Christmas decorations and it's not even Halloween.

When my children were young it was a red-letter day when the Christmas catalog arrived in the mailbox (remember those?) They spent hours poring over each page, with their greedy little fingers pointing, "I want this and this and this." By the middle of December that catalog looked like it had been run through a paper shredder. It wouldn't have even been good for use in the privy!

Oh how their eyes twinkled with excitement and anticipation and trust. They were excited knowing that Christmas would soon arrive. They anticipated lots of good things, and they trusted their loving parents to give them all the toys they had chosen.

That never happened. Many toys they chose were not age-appropriate, too expensive, and some I just didn't like. We chose the ones we could afford and those we liked – not always the ones they had pointed to in the catalog, because we loved them and knew better than they what was best for them.

And that's exactly how my loving heavenly Father answers my requests. When I say, "I want this and this and this to happen this way," He often doesn't give me my desires. But He always gives me what He knows is best for me.

So, like my little children on Christmas morning, I will delight in all the wonderful gifts given, which far eclipse those that a wise and loving Father has withheld.

If you then being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your Father who is in heaven give what is good to those who ask Him. (Matt.7:11).

Decorating, Entertaining and Living in the Early American Style

by Annice Rockwell

Anticipating the Wonder

Often one of the most anticipated times of the year, the holiday season is filled with plentiful opportunities to create spaces that welcome and inspire. With themed gatherings planned for family and friends, we often feel a great sense of anticipation to share our creativity and to beautifully transform our homes to suit the season of celebration.

Charming Authenticity

In order to design a seasonal space we can often use some of our favorite classic antiques accented by elements of nature to surround us with charming authenticity. An antique lift-top mule chest in early red paint can be heightened and enhanced by stacking a smaller antique box in blue on top. Nestling boughs of evergreen between a primitive trencher and a blue decorated stoneware jug adds a balancing touch of nature to our vignette.

Antique sleds that radiantly reveal their use from age can be adorned with a spray of fresh hemlock, red berries and twinkling white lights to brighten the corner of the hearth. Centerpieces created by using a large divided carrier filled with greens and cones can feature a glass chimney to hold an antique hogscraper or one of our favorite scented country candles like "Orange Clove Pomander" or "Balsam Christmastide."

Early punched tin lighting that has come to represent tradition and comfort can be used to cast the beautiful play of light it was intended to create. Petite cedar trees in various sizes can be placed in crocks, firkins, early kegs or baskets to enliven a seating area or even brighten a country bathroom. Handmade country stockings fashioned from woven coverlets in bright red can be filled with greens and hung on our mantel or an interior door to add texture and color to our rooms.

Embracing the Magic

One of the blessings of the holidays is planning a festive night out with friends to take in the sights and sounds of Christmas. Main streets of small towns become magical and unusually alive on an Open House Night when storefront windows gleam with the glow of Christmas. Through the front windows we can see freshly decorated inviting displays of antiques, textiles, scented candles and decorations that deeply appeal to our country style. As we enter these local shops the music of the dulcimer plays traditional tunes while we take in a cup of hot mulled cider while we browse. We know that the hand-selected purchases we make are even more special because they are local and support the shops that provide us with a sense of genuine connection.

After finding the perfect treasures to give as gifts or the ideal antique to enhance our displays, we can visit a local restaurant that promises to be a memorable part of our night. Taking time to plan a festive, local night out is time well-spent as we share in the abundant blessings of giving.

This season, enjoy the anticipation of creating magic. Transform your home to include the splendor of a country Christmas. Spend a treasured evening with friends embracing the sense of wonder that this spectacular season always brings.

Yorkshire Pudding – Gracie Tenant's recipe

submitted by Sharon Atkinson

3/4 cup shifted flou
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup of milk
2 eggs
1 tsp salt
2 tsp sugar
2 Tablespoons butter

Directions:

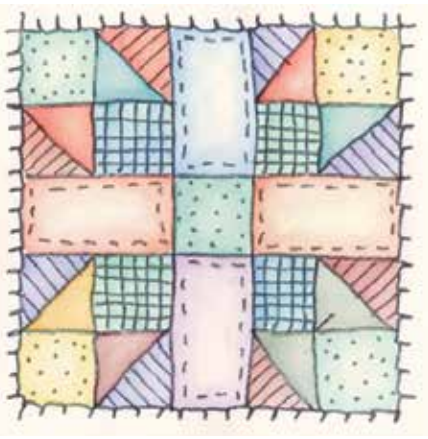

Put flour and salt in a bowl. Add enough milk to make like heavy cream. In another bowl beat eggs until thick, add remaining milk. Combine the two mixtures and beat until large bubbles appear on the surface. Let stand one hour. Put hot fat into pan or muffin tins. Pour in mixture.

Bake 20 minutes at 425 degrees.

The Myth of the Perfect First Quilt

by Steve Baker

There is a quiet little myth that follows a lot of beginner quilters into the sewing room. It says your first quilt should be beautiful. It says your seams should line up, your points should behave, your borders should lie flat, your binding should turn the corners perfectly, and the finished quilt should look like something worthy of a magazine photo. Goodness, that is a lot to ask from a first quilt!

Your first quilt is not supposed to be a masterpiece. It is supposed to be a beginning. It is where your hands learn what your eyes have been admiring. It is where fabric stops being pretty folded yardage and becomes something you cut, stitched, pressed, trimmed, layered, quilted, and finished. That matters.

It is easy to compare your first quilt to the beautiful quilts you see online, at quilt shows, in shops, or in the hands of makers who have been quilting for decades. But those quilts carry years of practice, mistakes, lessons, shortcuts, tools, and experience.

Your first quilt carries something different. It carries courage. It carries the moment you decide to try. And it carries every little pause where you wondered, "Am I doing this right?" and kept going anyway. Your first quilt is not a final exam. It is a teacher.

It will teach you things no video, pattern, or tutorial can fully explain until the learning moves through your own hands. You will discover how fabric shifts while you sew, why a consistent quarter-inch seam matters, and what pressing can do for a block. You will learn that accurate cutting matters, but so does relaxing your shoulders and giving yourself permission to be new.

Some of those lessons will arrive disguised as mistakes, and no, you won't like those parts. A seam may not line up. A point may disappear. One block may somehow end up smaller than all the others. Your quilting stitches may wander. Your binding corner may look less like a miter and more like a tiny fabric argument. That does not mean you are bad at quilting. It means you are quilting.

I will be honest. As a bit of a perfectionist, making my first quilt was an exciting undertaking, but it was also a humbling reminder that learning a new skill can be far more frustrating than I care to admit.

There was a great deal of self-talk happening that people do not usually share. I congratulated myself on the wins when the points aligned, but when they did not, I could be brutal, degrading, and downright punishing with myself. I was arguing with myself instead of being the patient teacher and willing learner I would have been for someone else. That was not fair to me.

Somewhere along the way, I realized I was learning more than how to make a quilt. I was learning how to give myself grace, which may have been the most important lesson of all.

Looking back, I also understand that every mistake taught me why the proper techniques matter. Without those mistakes, I am not sure I could have fully understood how all the pieces of the process work together.

I laugh about it now, but I resisted being exact with my seam allowance because I was convinced, "It will come out in the end." I resisted all that starching and pressing because surely that would come out in the end too. I resisted picking up the seam ripper because somehow that felt like admitting defeat. And I measured once and cut once until buying more fabric finally convinced me there might be something to that old saying about measuring twice.

In the end, I truly understood why things are done the way they are done.

Most of those realizations came slowly, often in the quieter moments after a day of sewing was over, when I had finally stopped berating myself over my perceived shortcomings and my blood pressure had returned to something resembling normal. This was supposed to be fun. And eventually, it was.

Over the weeks that followed, the skills improved. My thoughts became gentler and more forgiving. The inner critic still had plenty to say, but I became much better at deciding how much attention he deserved.

And somewhere along the way, a love for the craft came over the horizon like a beautiful rising sun. I was quilting. It was not perfect. But it was beautiful.

That experience also taught me something else: part of becoming a quilter is learning which things truly need to be fixed and which things are simply the quilt's "personality traits."

A weak seam? Fix it. A block sewn incorrectly in a way that will affect the quilt? Fix it. A slightly imperfect point or a quilting line that took the scenic route? Maybe let that one live.

Your first quilt will probably have a few personality traits. Let it.

One of the most important things your first quilt can teach you is the value of finishing. You can learn far more from completing one imperfect quilt than from abandoning three because they were not flawless.

Care and perfection are not the same thing. Care says, "I will do my best with what I know right now." Perfection says, "My best does not count unless nothing goes wrong." Choose care.

Measure carefully. Cut thoughtfully. Sew patiently. Press with intention and be generous with the spray starch. Ask questions. Pick up the seam ripper when you need it. Fix what truly needs fixing. Mr. Seam Ripper is actually your friend, and not the tormentor with an unusually sharp, pointy finger. Learn to love him.

Then keep going.

Someday, after you have made more quilts, learned more techniques, and collected a few favorite tools, you may look back at that first quilt and notice every uneven seam and wandering corner. But you may also see something far more important. You may see the moment you became a quilter.

So, make the quilt. Make it with curiosity instead of fear. Make it with care instead of pressure. Let it carry the evidence of learning.

Your first quilt does not need to be perfect to be precious. It only needs to be made. And when you make that final stitch, you will have something far more valuable than a flawless quilt.

You will have proof that you began.

Holiday Traditions of Love

by Julie Pirtle

As I get older, the holiday season becomes more cherished. Memories of past gatherings grow sweeter.

Anticipation of being with loved ones again grows dearer.

I think reflection this time of year is common for many. It's difficult to not think about those who are no longer with us. Their laughter and joy live in our hearts. Looking at pictures around the tree and feeling the warmth that was shared by all is palpable when thinking about their absence.

It is interesting to note that for me, most of my memories are based on the family traditions that many of those same people shared with me. The continuation of those traditions is what keeps them part of our holiday joy.

Being of Norwegian descent, I can recall numerous seasons filled with Lefsa making. (If you aren't familiar with this yummy dish, just picture a soft fluffy tortilla made with riced potatoes.)

I can see it like it was yesterday. Grandma rolling out the round dough between white floured feed sack towels and Grandpa making sure they were cooked just right. Grandma loved sharing them with us as they came off the griddle. Topped with butter and homemade raspberry jam or cinnamon and sugar, they were equally delightful.

My Great Grandmother always made simple sugar cookies with colored frosting. Her daughter (my Grandma) continued the tradition, using the same tarnished metal cookie cutters with faded green and red wood handles.

It was always exciting as a kid to see Grandma walk into the house with a box full of those cookies. Angels, trees, bells, Santa…all ready for the taking! I am delighted to say that the tradition is still carried on, even through my own daughter. Five generations of women lovingly keeping the tradition safe.

Also being of German descent, we always opened gifts for each other on Christmas Eve. However, dinner came first and it was usually a Paste (pass-tee) made with potatoes, beef, onions and pie crust. Another tradition from the Norwegian side of the family.

Paste was made in my grandmother's family back in the 20's-30's. They were poor, and it was made out of necessity. They always had flour and lard for the crust and potatoes and onions for the filling. Grandma shared that meat was a luxury and was not often included. Yet, as a modern family, we thought it was such a treat.

Stockings were always filled by Santa and dispersed on Christmas morning. It started out as something for the children but morphed over the years to include the adults in the family as well. The items in the adult stockings sometimes had a joke involved and perhaps a lottery ticket or two!

I am blessed to have many photos of Christmas past. I am most grateful for a photo we took on my brother's long second floor staircase almost three years ago. My parents are on the bottom of the stairs. Behind them are each of us kids with their spouses, children and grandchildren. All seated and smiling. It was the last picture we would be able to take like that.

I watch the next generation of our family carrying out many of the same traditions that they grew up with. It warms my heart and I am proud to have been part of the history they carry on.

With all the traditions (some conscious and perhaps just by habit), it makes me wonder who started them and why? Were they done by necessity? Do they date back further than I even realize? Sadly, the people that could help me with those questions can no longer answer.

This year as your family begins to celebrate together, take a moment to discuss the traditional things your family participates in. Ask the elders if they know more about the start of them. Take a moment to document the answers to be able to share with the generations that follow.

Life is difficult and stressful for many now. Let's all make a promise to bask in the glow of the season and the love we have for each other.

C'mon! We've got this. I know we do.

Those Were The Days!

Taking a Panoramic View
Looking at it from a Wide-Angle Lens

by Jay Mark

Full and honest confession. From my earliest days, I have always been captivated by photography. Based on my age, which I am not revealing, I have used nearly every photographic format – from the classic Speed Graphic, to the Argus C3 35 mm camera, to the single lens reflex, to digital cameras.

For the most part, I have seen it all. Gigantic advancements and improvements. Oh, I almost forgot - the digital phone camera. Like many, I wasn't comfortable with radical changes - only to humbly and fully embrace it over time.

It's not unlike aviation. Think of it. In a century-and-a-quarter we've observed a machine that could barely hang on to a few feet above the earth, to today where a whole community it would seem, can soar through the air for endless hours from one side of the planet to the other side. Photographically, cameras have gone from cumbersome one shot at a time that had to wait for the darkroom to see what was shot. Now, we can take 100s of photos at once. And view them instantly.

What brought all this to mind was my recent discovery of an unusually undated, panoramic photographic postcard. On its 3 ½ x11" length, are depicted 22 people that appear to be early 20th century college students. That got me thinking about the challenges early photographers faced when attempting to take wide-angle, panoramic pictures.

Printed on the back of the card was a valuable clue as to how this remarkable image was accomplished. It reads "Al-Vista" Multiscope and Film Company, Burlington, Wisconsin. It told me that that company that manufactured the camera, also produced the film and paper.

In the time after George Eastman introduced his roll-film Kodak camera in 1888, amateur photography exploded. That provided opportunities to develop specialty cameras. In 1896, Peter Nickolaus Angston, a German inventor living in Burlington, Wisconsin, devised a camera with the capability of shooting 160° wide-angle, panoramic photographs.

He began selling them in Chicago. But soon, his patent was purchased by four Burlington businessmen, who organized the Multiscope & Film Company that by 1901 was marketing Angston's camera under the Al-Vista name.

The camera was a boxy device clad in textured black leather, resembling other cameras of the day. Except where a lens, shutter and bellows would be was a large opening that featured a lens attached to a leather bellow folded into a narrow case.

When activated, the motor-driven lens would scan the image across film held across a curved back. (Animations of the process can be found on YouTube). Amateurs now had their own wide-angle camera. But at a cost. The most expensive was priced at $45 in 1908. That's over $1600 today. Nearly the cost of the new folding iPhone Duo. And other phones that have a panorama mode, which takes all the hassle out of wide-angle photography.

For a brief period, to expand the camera's use, the Multiscope and Film Co. produced a changing front camera that could replace the wide-angle format mechanism and accommodate a conventional lens and bellows. But the steep price virtually assured the camera couldn't keep up with the competition. After 17 years, the company finally folded, so to speak, leaving a unique camera in the dustbin of history.

Because of their rarity, very few Al-Vista's come on the market making their value high. Cameras in functioning condition will begin at over $1000, rising to over $2000.

An odd c1908 photographic, panoramic postcard started a search for how it was made.

The manufacturer's imprint, upper right, pointed to the discovery of the circa 1908 Al-Vista panorama camera that took the photo.

Life on My Wee Farm

Pockets Filled with Thankfulness

by Donna Jo Copeland, farmeress

A year like no other, 2026. As I sit at my old kitchen table in my crumbling farmhouse, sipping tea, munching on homemade bread and peach jam, I try to remember to be thankful. Good lord yes, I'm scared! Barely getting by.

I take a deep breath, fold my hands, call up my ancestors. Centering on their strength, their resolve, their love, their faith in tomorrow.

A vision of my grandmother's apron pocket comes to mind. I never knew exactly what she kept in there...clean hankie, horehound candy, keys. Often during the day, I would see her, hand in that pocket, far off look in her eyes. I think now she must have been giving thanks, maybe praying, maybe remembering.

So, I shall sum up the year in pockets.

In one pocket I will put those most dear to me, my animals. They sustain me. Give me reason to rise in the morning, bringing me smiles, ready for feed and hugs. The companionship of my cats and dog. The wonderful wools from my bunny's goats and sheep. Fresh eggs from my hens. A very full pocket.

In another pocket I will carry my family, my kin. Their strength and love. Promise of generations and adventure. An odd assortment of personalities but they are mine.

My health and love of fiber and hard work go into another pocket. So thankful I am able to care for my animals, pursue my fiber work, somehow keep body and soul together. Glad I rise with a smile on my face no matter how hard the day ahead

Another pocket is for my realm, my wee farm. The wonders of trees, plants, stream, rocks and fertile soil. The hum of bees. Birds. Wild things. Dragonflies in my garden, fireflies in the summer nights. Hoar frost on fence lines. Diamonds in the dew. A place untouched by chemicals and little technology.

In another pocket I must put my love of reading, my quest to learn history, to find out why and how. Books to keep me company on sleepless nights. Stories to wander in on summer afternoons. Knowledge of the ages, printed on paper, bound up with the stuff of life.

Friends should have a pocket for they are dear to me. Some wander in and out of my life. Others always there. I rely on their listening, help, love and loyalty. I don't judge them, ask only understanding for I am a feral crone.

A pocket must be for our country. What it was and will be again. Change is inevitable but we have lost sight of compassion and respect. I am thankful there are still people who hold to morals and honor. May we gain ground in the coming year, thankful for our aged history.

And being a farm child, farmers must have a special pocket of thankfulness. I can feel their fear, disappointment. Please let them gather strength, resolve, our support. I am so thankful for them, large and small, family farms. The farmers made and still keep this country. The greedy who abuse them can go to compost.

In another pocket I have to put those who protect us...soldiers, policemen, firemen. The everyday heroes. I'm thankful they feel led to serve, help us, one another. May they stand tall with honor.

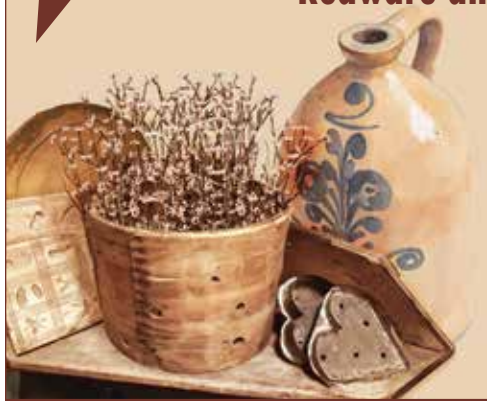

My heavens my pockets are full. I have much to be thankful for as the year ends. And as Christmas approaches, I have Christmas wishes. Those I won't list here. You make your own list, fill your own pockets of thankfulness.

Let's be a little kinder, less judgmental, gentler, more caring, more loving. Sharing. Peace and blessings.

The Art of Writing a Christmas Letter

by Judy Sharer

Did you know there is an art to writing a Christmas letter? At least when I was young and still writing letters to Santa Claus there was a method in my wording. I'd always start with the toy or item I wanted the most. Notice, I said toy or item. As I grew older my list changed from all toys to more grown-up necessities.

Instead of trying to explain in detail, I'll share one of my letters to Santa as best as I can remember.

Dear Santa,

I hope you and Mrs. Claus are doing well and that all the elves and reindeers have had a good year also. I am well. I caught the chickenpox in June during summer vacation, so I didn't get to miss any days of school like my best friend Lorie. She got to miss almost four weeks, but she still had to do all the work. I guess having them during vacation was OK.

I plan to watch as many Christmas specials as I can fit into my schedule. I know the elves are busy making presents and I am busy making some presents for my family too. Grandma let me use some of the buttons in her button tin and I am gluing them onto picture frames to give to all my aunts and uncles. Mom said I can give the frame to both of them with my school picture inside. I think they will be all right with one gift for both of them. At least I hope so.

This year I have a few things I really would like. The number one thing is a camera with film and flash bulbs. If you can bring me the camera, feel free to mention the film and flash bulbs to my parents and other family members. You can never have too much film. And don't worry I'll act surprised when I open their packages. Next, I'd like a Spirograph. Not a Spirotot for ages 3-7. I feel I am old enough to handle the bigger set with more designs. This way I won't have to ask for the larger version later. I'll already have it and know how to use it. I would also like a few new books to read. As you know, Santa, mysteries are my favorite. And I'd like some blue and green yarn to knit a new hat that I saw on one of the girls at school. I asked, and Grandma already said she'd help me make it. Did I mention I wanted a camera and film? I can make do without as many flash bulbs, but the camera and film are very very important. Well, that's it for my list this year. Thank you for reading my letter and after the new year look for a thank you note that Mom makes me write to everyone after Christmas.

I wish you and Mrs. Claus a wonderful holiday. Don't eat too many cookies before you get to my house, because I'm making chocolate chip cookies just for you. If you can't eat them all, you can take them home to share with Mrs. Claus. I'll understand.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!
Sincerely,
your friend
Judy Sharer

Now that's a well composed letter to Santa! And yes, I did get a camera and plenty of film for Christmas that year.

DREAMS DO COME TRUE

by Janet Young

Dashing through the snow, in a one-horse open sleigh, those are the words to a well-known Christmas song - Jingle Bells, written in 1857 by James Lord Piedmont. This song was not intended to be a Christmas song. In fact, it was first sung in a Thanksgiving church service. Piedmont wanted it to be a lively tune that celebrated sleigh racing. Before long, it soon appeared as a Christmas song even though it never mentioned Santa, reindeer, snowmen, or any other secular symbols of the holiday. So, why did I start this article referencing Jingle Bells? Let's begin.

When my mother was growing up, it had been her life-long dream to go on a one-horse open-sleigh ride. This was a secret I never knew about until one day, she happened to mention how she wished she would have had the chance go on that ride. By now she was in her eighties, and her chances of ever having that wish come true was slowly diminishing.

That is, until one November day I happened upon a local newspaper that talked about a local fire station hosting a Christmas Open House replete with Santa, crafts, entertainment, and last but not least one-horse open sleigh rides.

My immediate thought was how would they be able to do this. The event was to be in early December. However, in Central Pennsylvania the chances of having snow, was so unpredictable, especially since there was no weather forecast predicting snow.

As the date approached, excitement was cautiously building because I still did not know how they were going to do this. We entered the fire station, and were amazed by all the festivities. We listened to the various chorale groups. And before long the big moment arrived.

It was a cold winter night, so my husband stayed inside with my mother while I went outside to wait in line. Before long, it was our turn to get in the sleigh. We bundled up in a cozy warm blanket and off we went around the grounds of the fire station.

How did we do this when there was no snow on the ground? Well, due to the ingenuity of a kind soul, we were transported in the sleigh that had wheels placed on a platform that the sleigh could safely and comfortably rest upon. And yes, it was driven by two horses.

While this may not seem like such an idyllic sleigh ride, let me tell you, in the darkness of the night, you would have never known you were not flying over the hills of snow. There was magic in the air that night. And, all because my 85-year-old mother had finally realized her childhood dream. With a smile on her face, and my heart filled with love, I knew that this would be a night she would forever cherish.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

The Sewing Machines Are Out!!

by Wayne M. Bosman

The sewing machines are out! This is something that happens fitfully here. Kerri is the one who sews at our house, so when they appear, something important is afoot.

We have a lot of sewing machines. Most of them are mine, but those rarely get used. After 49 years as a mechanic I retired- mostly. It would have been really hard after a lifetime of fixing things to just stop cold turkey.

Sewing machines are relatively light compared to cars, and I can keep a whole bunch of them around without the neighbors complaining. Or more importantly perhaps without Kerri complaining. (I should put in a disclaimer here-Kerri is absolutely accommodating to my many and varied projects. She is not the complaining type. Our neighbors are nice too.)

At any rate, I found that I have an affinity for sewing machines, especially ones about my age. I seem to be a magnet for broken sewing machines that need a little TLC. I buy them, fix them and then give them away to someone who will use them. Not a very good business model, but it keeps me off the streets.

Kerri has only two sewing machines that she works with. One was her mother's Singer 401a. It is the machine she learned on. Every time she sits down to use it she remembers her mother, and it is her belief and intent that some of her mother's love goes into whatever she sews on it. The other machine was my mother's Kenmore 158. The belief is the same. Both machines give her a lot of joy when she uses them. She likes to imagine the previous owners looking over her shoulder while she makes things for the next generation.

Kerri uses sewing machines, I just fix them occasionally. She doesn't sew professionally, she makes things. It is her internal belief that taking the time to hand make something for each of the grandchildren every year lets them know that they are loved. They still get the flavor-of-the-month toy or a gift card that will let them get what they want. That is all well and good, but to make something one of a kind consciously aimed at them individually has a special meaning for her. It is love made manifest.

Of course, sometimes the handmade item will miss the mark. Children are inscrutable and constantly changing, but in the attempt a message is sent. The message goes beyond the usability of the item. The message says "I love you. I see you and am doing my best to support you from afar." If the item goes quickly to the back of the bottom drawer, as sometimes happens, so be it. The message is sent anyway.

But more often, the little handmade item gets used. The pillowcase made of fabric that has scenes of the child's favorite things ends up on the bed. The useful canvas bag that might be just the right size for taking things to the beach is exactly that. The crocheted hats and sweaters get worn and become favorites.

So there is an excitement in the house, and some anticipation as this year's Christmas gifts take shape. Kerri starts this process shortly after Christmas every year, but there is inevitably an acceleration as zero hour approaches.

There are new additions to the list of recipients and last minute inspirations as the children evolve. It is our sadness that Mom is no longer on the list. She passed last year at 104. She didn't need anything before and she definitely doesn't need anything now, at least nothing that can be made on a sewing machine.

We won't be eating at the kitchen table for a few days. Three sewing machines and tools have taken over.

Wayne M. Bosman is a retired auto mechanic living in Cape Carteret, NC.

The Holiday Hustle

by Barbara Kalkis

There is no season more intense than the final 92 days of the year. Surely, no one escapes the speed with which the days fly by, like geese honking farewell as they race toward warm weather.

Businesses understand the fourth-quarter, Q4, months are the final push to lure customers, raise annual sales, and post earnings revenue "in the black". Artisans know these days culminate a year of sewing, painting, quilting, knitting, crocheting, making, baking, creating the unique items they will sell before December 31st.

The last quarter begins with sunflower bouquets and brightly colored leaves, corn stalks and pumpkins, craft fairs and harvest festivals. We then pivot to Jack O'Lanterns, ghosts, witches, black cats, scare crows and Halloween candies for one fun-filled night. The next day, everything orange and black is tossed back into storge to make way for Thanksgiving. Pumpkins lose their scary smiling faces and become fancy décor items in shades of white, sedate sage, and – aptly named – pumpkin orange. To live the moment to the max, decorations set the scene for traditional turkey dinner with all the trimmings of stuffing, sweet potatoes, corn, green beans, cranberry sauce – whole or jellied, and – what else? Pies! With leftovers stored, we take advantage of Black Friday sales. And that begins the final seasonal crunch.

Our homes become the setting for poinsettias, wreaths, bayberry candles, greeting cards and photos (if one is fortunate), train sets, gaily wrapped secret packages, outdoor light displays, and the tree in a place of honor, glittering with decorations.

I think we cram the most energy and effort into making this fourth season memorable. Every one of our five senses seems to be heightened: feeling the morning chill, smelling pine-scented trees and wreaths, gobbling down fresh-baked cookies and milk, seeing homes sparkle with decorations, listening to holiday music.

I believe in a sixth sense that is our emotions. When I recall Christmases growing up. I think of our family adventure of driving to a farm to find our special tree.

We would jauntily set off in the snow to find the perfect tree. The "winner" had to be approved by all, so this process was time-consuming. Too small. Too tall, Too skinny. Too "fat" for my father's flimsy saw. Too "bushy" for my mother's dangling ornaments. Too full to push through the back door.

After a thorough search of the woods, we would find the winner. Primarily, because we were all exhausted from trudging through the snow and were as cold as popsicles. Finding our way back to the barn – which some years seemed to an iffy thing (my parents were city people) – we slogged into the barn and rushed to warm ourselves with cocoa and hot apple cider. Satisfied that the main seasonal purchase was accomplished, we'd arrive home to waiting lights and a warming fire.

It's easy to romanticize these last days of the year, but they are truly memorable. In all other seasons, there are special holidays, but those last 91 days cram the most work, memories, emotions, scents, and feelings of putting an imaginary "bow" on the gift that is life.

When I was young, I used to stand at my bedroom window and look out into the night, trying to spot Santa Claus entering the neighborhood. Now I stand at my window and look out at the blnight and feel the contentment of a year that delivered all kinds of events, but which ended once again in the gift that Life gives us every day. However you have raced from Autumn to Halloween to Thanksgiving to Christmas to the new year, Celebrate!
